

As people age they often become more patient but they may also develop a greater sense of independence which can lead to changes in their relationships and perspectives on life.

As people age they often become more patient but they may also develop a greater sense of independence which can lead to changes in their relationships and perspectives on life.