

As people grow older they tend to value stability more yet they may also seek new experiences which can sometimes challenge their sense of security and prompt them to reevaluate their priorities.

As people grow older they tend to value stability more yet they may also seek new experiences which can sometimes challenge their sense of security and prompt them to reevaluate their priorities.